Simply B-nable.

The APPEAL seldom indulges in profane language, but the present variegated weather is quite a sufficient excuse for the heading of the article. It has given everybody in town coughs, epizootic, influenza and neuralgia.

The editor of the APPEAL has all of these visitations and writes with his jaw tied up.

A good experienced swearer, (a Comstocker preferred), can get steady employment at this office expressing our feelings while the present weather lasts. No tenderfeet need apply.

The Asphaltum Pipe Company.

The Tribune would enquire of Sam Davis if investing money earned in Carson in a San Francisco asphaltum pipe company is aiding "State development."—Tribune.

Such enquiries are always in order. Most of the capital advanced to back the company and erect a pipe factory came from outside the State of Nevada. Most of the stock is held in Nevada, and while it is now nearly eighteen months since the enterprise took shape, not a single assessment has been levied.

If an enterprise can be put on its feet, mostly by the aid of California capital while the bulk of the stock is held by Nevada people we fail to see why the Tribune should object.

In a few months Nevada people will be able to purchase water and irrigation pipe cheaper than ever before, and iron pipes in the alkali sections of Nevada, which now do not last much over a year will be replaced by asphaltum pipe that is not affected by any known acid or alkali. This will materially assist in the development of the State, by cheapening the cost of irrigation. Water is scarce in Nevada, but when pipes cost no more than ditches and are everlasting, it is easy to see how much water can be saved for irrigation; no loss by seepage and evaporation.

Mr. Parkinson who has always deemed investment in California land better than in Nevada, will also be able to irrigate his California land at about half the present cost.

By calling at the asphaltum pipe works, corner of Bay and Webster streets, San Francisco, he can get pipe at very reasonable rates. Half cash and the balance in advertising if he likes.
